

Handling Chemotherapy Safely

Chemotherapy medicines, also called chemo, may be present in stool, urine, saliva, blood, mucus, vomit, or drainage. Small amounts are also in vaginal and semen body fluids. To be safe, avoid contact with the chemo medicines and body waste and fluids. Follow these safety guidelines for 48 hours after each time you have chemo.

When you are given chemo, the staff may wear gloves, gowns, masks or goggles when handling chemotherapy, blood and body waste.

Avoid Contact with Body Waste

Follow these safety guidelines anytime you might touch body fluids or waste. This includes urine, stool, vomit, blood or containers that touch these such as the toilet, bedpan or ostomy bags.

- Buy latex or latex free gloves that are chemo safe at your local pharmacy.
- Wear the gloves when touching anything that has body fluids on or in it. Put gloves on before touching the toilet, bedpan, ostomy bag, diaper, bed sheets or pads. Wash your hands with the gloves on, then remove the gloves and wash your hands again.
- Men should sit down on the toilet.
- Empty body waste into the toilet. Empty it close to the water to limit splashing.
- Flush the toilet twice with the lid down.
