Lowering Sodium in Your Diet

What is sodium?
Sodium is a mineral that is needed for good health and is present in all foods. Most people eat more sodium than they need. If the body cannot get rid of the extra sodium, fluid builds up. Extra fluid increases the work of the heart and kidneys, and may increase blood pressure. Eating less sodium may help control these problems. You will sometimes see the term sodium abbreviated "Na," as in NaCl (sodium chloride), which is table salt.

The current guideline for how much sodium we should eat is 2,300 milligrams (mg). The guideline is even lower at 1,500 mg for those over 50 years old, with high blood pressure and for African Americans. These sodium goals can be hard for some people to reach, especially if they are eating large amounts of sodium now. Many people can get to the lower sodium goal over time by making small changes to their diets. This handout can help you start to do this.

Sodium Guidelines
To choose foods that are healthier for you, look for these labels:

- Sodium-free: less than 5 milligrams of sodium per serving
- Very low-sodium: 35 milligrams or less per serving
- Low-sodium: 140 milligrams or less per serving

Remember, reduced sodium and unsalted products still have salt in them!
- Reduced sodium: usual sodium level is reduced by 25 percent
- Unsalted, no salt added or without added salt: made without the salt, but still has the sodium that is a natural part of the food

Know Your Salt

When you are trying to lower the sodium in your diet, even a small amount of salt has a lot of sodium in it.

How can I limit sodium?

General tips:
- Do not add salt to food at the table.
- Avoid seasoned salts. These include onion salt, celery salt, lite salt, low-sodium salt and sea salt. Accent, meat tenderizers and lemon pepper should also be avoided.
- Be careful if you choose a salt substitute. Many substitutes have large amounts of potassium in them which can cause medical problems for some people. Lite salts contain sodium in smaller amounts, but they are still too high for people who need to restrict sodium. Ask your doctor or dietitian if a salt substitute is okay for you.

Avoid food where large amounts of salt or sodium have been added:
- All cured or smoked meats such as Canadian bacon, salt pork, ham, luncheon meat, sausage, canned or dried beef, bacon, wieners (including products made from soy products and turkey), sardines, smoked fish and pepperoni
- Processed cheese and cheese spreads such as American cheese, Velveeta and Cheese Whiz
- Most restaurant foods
